Deadlines, Juries, and Justice: State Court Civil Procedure in Review

Wednesday, January 14, 2026, 2-3 pm ET

Prof. Marcus Gadson, UNC School of Law, NCJI Academic Program Consultant

CLE credit pending.

Join us for an exceptionally timely talk about the major shifts reshaping state civil justice with constitutional scholar Prof. Marcus Gadson of UNC School of Law, who serves NCJI as its Academic Program Consultant. From sweeping rewrites of civil-procedure rules to high-stakes rulings on statutes of limitation and the constitutional right to a jury trial, Marcus will break down what plaintiffs' lawyers need to know now. You'll walk away with a clear view of the trends that matter—and how these rapid changes are redefining access to justice and the strategies that win in today's courts.

Who should Attend: Attorneys seeking actionable insights into the fast-moving developments in state civil procedure.

Cost: Free to NCJI Fellows and Supporters
